ObliqSound releases “Teerera (feat. Oliver Mtukudzi)”, first single from upcoming Max Wild full-length album, featuring Zimbabwe’s best-selling artist Oliver Mtukudzi

“Teerera (feat. Oliver Mtukudzi)” is the first single from Max Wild's upcoming album on ObliqSound. The single is a mix of two different worlds, pairing jazz saxophonist Max Wild with Zimbabwean megastar Oliver Mtukudzi and Oliver's rising-star son Sam Mtukudzi. Teerera is only available as a digital release. The group's first full-length album will be released in early 2009.

Max Wild began his musical career at the Zimbabwe College of Music taking saxophone lessons from Rick van Heerden. Fifteen years later, with credentials that range from performing with Grammy-nominated jazz tenorist Mark Turner to recording with African mega-star Oliver Mtukudzi, Wild has become a musician who defies stylistic boundaries and whose music spans continents with a collision of jazz, rock, and African genres.

Wild considers his musical path to be a direct reflection of his multi-cultural upbringing. Born to German parents, Wild grew up in Zimbabwe before being awarded scholarships to attend Guildhall School of music in London and Manhattan School of Music in New York. Since moving to the United States in 2002, Wild has toured internationally throughout North America, Europe and Africa. His latest project is an ambitious cross-Atlantic collaboration involving his band from New York and Oliver's son, the rising star from Zimbabwe, Sam Mtukudzi.

Besides appearing with his own projects, Wild also performs with The African Blue Notes (a New York-based West African group), East Meets West (a duo with tabla-player Rohin Khemani), and the legendary Tommy Dorsey Orchestra. In Zimbabwe, Wild has headlined the Victoria Falls International Jazz Festival in 2006 and 2007 and has performed with Oliver and Sam Mtukudzi, Victor Kunonga, Maletha and Philbert Marowa.
